EU nationals with a right of time-limited residence under this Order shall apply for a registration certificate within three months of entry if the residence is expected to last for longer than three months. The registration certificate is issued for an unspecified period. An EU national who changes his basis of residence must apply for a new registration certificate.

22. (1) It may be made a condition for the issue of a registration certificate to an EU national falling within section 3 of this Order that he presents a valid identity card or passport and either submits evidence of activities as a self-employed person in Denmark or submits confirmation of employment from an employer or a contract of employment as evidence of having paid employment in Denmark.

(2) It may be made a condition for the issue of a registration certificate to an EU national falling within section 4(1) of this Order that he presents a valid identity card or passport and submits evidence of having permanent employment with a service provider established in the EU and of his work in Denmark.

(3) It may be made a condition for the issue of a registration certificate to an EU national falling within section 5 of this Order that he presents a valid identity card or passport and submits evidence of enrolment at an establishment as referred to in section 5(1) of this Order, a declaration about or other similar evidence of having such income or means at his disposal for his support that he is presumed not to become a burden on the public authorities, and evidence of being covered by health insurance as referred to in section 5(2) of this Order.

When assessing what income and means are considered sufficient, the EU national's personal situation must be taken into account. The condition is always satisfied if the EU national has income or means at his disposal corresponding to the sum of the benefits for which he would be eligible under section 25(12) and section 34 of the Act on an Active Social Policy.

(5) An application for a registration certificate under subsections (1) to (4) hereof may be refused on grounds of public policy, public security or public health, or in case of abuse of rights or fraud.

23. (1) It may be made a condition for the issue of a registration certificate to an EU national falling within sections 8 to 12 of this Order that he presents a valid identity card or passport, a registration certificate or a residence card for the principal person whom the EU national joins or accompanies, and evidence of the existence of the relevant family relationship with the principal person. In case of family ties on the basis of marriage, registered partnership or regular cohabitation, it is a condition for the issue of the registration certificate that the family member in question and the principal person declare that the purpose of contracting the marriage or the registered partnership or establishing the cohabitation was not solely to obtain an independent basis of residence for the person in question. It is a condition for the issue of a registration certificate to an EU national falling within sections 8 to 12 of this Order that the principal person whom the said person joins or accompanies declares that he has established genuine and effective residence in Denmark. If there are reasons for a presumption of abuse of rights, evidence must be submitted to prove that the principal person has established genuine and effective residence in Denmark.

(2) An application for a registration certificate under subsection (1) hereof may be refused on grounds of public policy, public security or public health, or in case of abuse of rights or fraud.

(3) It may be made a condition for the issue of a registration certificate to an EU national falling within section 10, cf. section 2(1)(i), (ii) and (vi), of this Order that the principal person submits a declaration of having such income or means at his disposal for the support of himself and the EU national that the persons in question are presumed not to become a burden on the public authorities.

(4) It may be made a condition for the issue of a registration certificate to an EU national falling within sections 8 to 10, cf. section 2(1)(iii) to (v), section 11 or section 12, cf. section 2(1)(iii) to (v), of this Order that the principal person submits evidence of having such income or means at his disposal for the support of himself and the family member that the persons in question are presumed not to become a burden on the public authorities. In the assessment thereof, the personal situation of the principal person and his family must be taken into account. The condition is always satisfied if the principal person and the family member have income or means at their disposal corresponding to the sum of the benefits for which they would be eligible under section 25(12) and section 34 of the Act on an Active Social Policy.

(5) It may be made a condition for the issue of a registration certificate to an EU national falling within sections 8 to 12, cf. section 2(1)(vi), of this Order that the principal person submits evidence proving that serious health grounds strictly require the personal care of the EU national by the principal person.

24. A third-country national who changes his basis of residence must apply for a new residence card.

25. Family members who are third-country nationals and have a right of time-limited residence under this Order shall apply for a residence card within three months of entry if their residence is expected to last for longer than three months. The residence card under the first sentence hereof is referred to as a 'Residence card of a family member of a Union citizen' and is issued for five years from the date of issue or for the envisaged period of residence of the principal person, but see the third sentence hereof. The residence card under the first sentence hereof for a third-country national with a right of time-limited residence as a family member of a third-country national falling within section 4(2) of this Order is referred to as a 'Residence card of a family member of a third-country national' and is issued for the envisaged period of residence of the principal person. A family member who is a third-country national and changes his basis of residence must apply for a new residence card.

26. (1) It may be made a condition for the issue of a residence card to a third-country national falling within section 4(2) of this Order that he presents a valid passport and submits evidence of permanent employment with a service provider established in the EU, evidence of his work in Denmark, evidence of his right of residence and work in the country in which the service provider is established, and evidence of his eligibility to return to his country of origin or to the country in which the service provider is established after provision of his service. An application for a residence card under the first sentence hereof may be refused on grounds of public policy, public security or public health, or in case of abuse of rights or fraud.

(2) It may be made a condition for the issue of a residence card to a third-country national falling within sections 8 to 12 of this Order that he presents a valid passport, registration certificate or residence card for the person whom the third-country national joins or accompanies, and evidence of the existence of the relevant family relationship. In case of family ties on the basis of marriage, registered partnership or regular cohabitation, it is a condition for the issue of the residence card that the family member in question and the principal person declare that the purpose of contracting the marriage or the registered partnership or establishing the cohabitation was not solely to obtain an independent basis of residence for the person in question. It is a condition for the issue of a residence card to a third-country national falling within sections 8 to 12 of this Order that the principal person whom the said person joins or accompanies declares that he has established genuine and effective residence in Denmark. If there are reasons for a presumption of abuse of rights, evidence must be submitted to prove that the principal person has established genuine and effective residence in Denmark.

(3) An application for a residence card under subsection (2) hereof may be refused on grounds of public policy, public security or public health, or in case of abuse of rights or fraud.

(4) It may be made a condition for the issue of a residence card to a third-country national falling within section 10, cf. section 2(1)(i), (ii) and (vi), of this Order that the principal person submits a declaration of having such income or means at his disposal for the support of himself and the third-country national that the persons in question are presumed not to become a burden on the public authorities.

(5) It may be made a condition for the issue of a registration certificate to a third-country national falling within sections 8 to 10, cf. section 2(1)(iii) to (v), section 11 or section 12, cf. section 2(1)(iii) to (v), of this Order that the principal person submits evidence of having such income or means at his disposal for the support of himself and the family member that the persons in question are presumed not to become a burden on the public authorities. In the assessment thereof, the personal situation of the principal person and his family must be taken into account. The condition is always satisfied if the principal person and the family member have income or means at their disposal corresponding to the sum of the benefits for which they would be eligible under section 25(12) and section 34 of the Act on an Active Social Policy.

(6) It may be made a condition for the issue of a residence card to a third-country national falling within sections 8 to 12, cf. section 2(1)(vi), of this Order that the principal person submits evidence proving that serious health grounds strictly require the personal care of the EU national by the principal person.

27. (1) Income and means as referred to in section 22(4), third sentence, section 23(4), third sentence, and section 26(5), third sentence, of this Order must be calculated without any deduction of taxes, labour market contributions, contributions to the Danish Labour Market Supplementary Pension Scheme (ATP), the Special Pension Scheme (SP) and any other collective pension contributions. The same applies to the calculation of benefits under section 25(12) and section 34 of the Act on an Active Social Policy as referred to in section 22(4), third sentence, section 23(4), third sentence, and section 26(5), third sentence, of this Order. To the extent that the income is financed by Danish public funds, it is not included in the calculation of the income of the person in question unless it is unemployment benefits and the person in question proves his eligibility for such benefits in Denmark, or public benefits reflecting ties with the labour market.

(2) At the request of the authority which is to decide the application under section 33 of this Order, the local council of the municipality in which the alien lives or resides shall issue an opinion as to whether a person falling within section 22(4), 23(4) or 26(5) of this Order has income or means at his disposal corresponding at least to the sum of the benefits for which he would be eligible under section 25(12) and section 34 of the Act on an Active Social Policy. An opinion under the first sentence hereof is normally only requested if it is not indisputable whether the persons in question would be eligible for benefits under section 34 of the Act on an Active Social Policy.

Permanent residence

28. (1) Upon application, proof of a right of permanent residence is issued to an EU national who satisfies the conditions therefor under this Order.

(2) Upon application, proof of a right of permanent residence may be issued to a child under five years of age who does not fall within subsection (1) hereof solely due to his age where such proof is issued to the person having custody of the child.

29. (1) Upon application, a permanent residence card is issued to a third-country national who satisfies the conditions for permanent residence under this Order. The permanent residence card is renewed automatically every ten years.

(2) An application for a permanent residence card under subsection (1) hereof must be submitted before the applicant's residence card issued under section 24 or 25 of this Order expires.

(3) Upon application, a permanent residence card may be issued to a child under five years of age who does not fall within subsection (1) hereof solely due to his age where such permanent residence card is issued to the person having custody of the child.

Lapse of right of residence and revocation of residence document

30. (1) A time-limited right of residence under sections 3 to 6, sections 8 to 11, section 14(2) and (4) and section 15(2), cf. subsection (3), of this Order lapses if the person in question no longer satisfies the conditions referred to in those provisions.

(2) A time-limited right of residence under section 14(1) and section 15(1) of this Order lapses if the person in question abandons his place of residence in Denmark or has resided abroad for more than 12 consecutive months.

31. A permanent right of residence under sections 19 and 20 of this Order lapses if the person in question has resided abroad for more than two consecutive years.

32. (1) If a person's right of residence lapses under section 30 and 31 of this Order, the competent authority, see section 33 of this Order, shall decide whether the person in question may still reside in Denmark. Section 26(1) of the Aliens Act applies correspondingly. Residence cards of seconded third-country nationals, see section 24 of this Order, and residence cards of family members, see sections 25 and 29 of this Order, are revoked if it is decided that the holder is no longer entitled to reside in Denmark.

(2) Subsection (1) hereof applies correspondingly in the event of abuse of rights, if the basis for issue of a person's registration certificate or residence card was incorrect, or the person in question obtained the registration certificate or residence card by fraud, including by virtue of a marriage of convenience.

(3) Upon application, it may be decided that a right of residence will not be deemed lapsed in the cases referred to in sections 30 and 31 of this Order.

Part 8

Jurisdiction and appeals

33. (1) Other than in cases falling within subsection (2) hereof, the regional state administration of the place in Denmark where the alien lives or resides shall make decisions pursuant to this Order. If the alien does not live or reside in Denmark, the regional state administration of the place where it is assumed that the alien will live or reside or has lived or resided in Denmark shall decide the case. If it cannot be determined where in Denmark the alien intends to live or reside or has lived and or resided, the State Administration for Greater Copenhagen shall decide the case. In special cases, the Danish Immigration Service may authorise another regional state administration to decide such cases.

(2) The Danish Immigration Service decides cases on the issue and revocation of registration certificates and residence cards under section 4 and 13 of this Order.

(3) The Danish Immigration Service may decide that certain types of cases on the right of residence under this Order must be examined by the Danish Immigration Service.

(4) An application for a registration certificate or a residence card must be submitted to the authority which is to decide the application.
