Application for extension of a temporary residence permit on the grounds of family reunification with a spouse

- extension of a temporary residence permit issued on the grounds of marriage or cohabitation

Uses

This form is to be used when applying to extend a temporary Faroese residence permit as a family reunified spouse.

The term 'family reunified spouse' should be understood to mean Faroese residence based on:

- marriage or
- cohabitation

Please fill out this form together with your spouse/partner in the Faroe Islands, that is to say the person (spouse or partner) who had the right to live in the Faroe Islands prior to family reunification, and who applied with you for your initial residence permit.

The term 'applicant' is used below to refer to you, the person applying for an extension of your residence permit. The term 'spouse' is used as a general term to refer to your spouse or cohabiting partner.

How can I tell what type of residence permit I have?

The type of residence permit you were issued is explained in the letter from the Danish Immigration Service you received when you were first granted a residence permit, or when you were granted your latest extension. If you are not sure what type of residence permit you hold, you are always welcome to contact the Danish Immigration Service or the police.

If you have children who need to extend their residence permits

Separate forms are required for family reunified children who need to apply for an extension of their residence permit. A copy of form FO/FA4 should be submitted for each child applying for an extension. Forms can be downloaded from www.newtodenmark.dk.

Declaring that you qualify for an extension

In order to qualify for an extension of your residence permit, you must continue to meet the requirements for issuing your initial permit. By signing below, you and your spouse declare that you still qualify for family reunification.

The letter the Danish Immigration Service sent to you (the applicant) with your original residence permit or your most recent extension states the conditions for your residence permit and any waivers that may have been granted. We recommend that you refer to this letter before completing the application form in order to ensure that you are aware of all the requirements.

Providing false information in an application is subject to the following penalties:

- fine or up to two years imprisonment
- repayment of the expenses the Danish state might have incurred as a result of the false information
- your (the applicant's) residence permit can be revoked

Qualifying for a family reunification residence permit

In order to complete this application form correctly you need to be aware that the following requirements may apply in your case:

- that you live at the same address
- that your spouse is able to support you financially
- that you have accommodation of adequate size at your disposal

Joint residency is required in all cases. The financial support and housing requirements can be waived in some cases.

The requirements can be waived if:

- your spouse has custody of, or visitation rights with, a child under 18 from a previous relationship
- your spouse suffers from a serious health condition or
- your spouse holds refugee status

The requirements you needed to meet in order to receive your original family reunification residence permit are indicated on the residence permit.

If the above-mentioned requirements applied when your current residence permit was granted, then the same requirements will apply when seeking to extend your residence permit. If the requirements were waived, the reasons for granting the waiver must still exist, otherwise you could be required to meet them.

FO/FA3

The following are examples of how your situation might have changed and the effect the changes would have on your residence permit:

Example A: The housing and financial support requirements were waived when your current residence permit was granted because your spouse has visitation rights with a child under 18 from a previous relationship.

Situation 1: At the time of your application for an extension of your residence permit, your spouse still has visitation rights with the child under the same conditions that existed when you applied for your original residence permit, and the child is still under 18. If this is the case, you can declare that the conditions stipulated in your residence permit are unchanged. You should tick box B in Section 4.1, below, and your spouse should tick box B in Section 6.1.

Situation 2: At the time of your application for an extension of your residence permit, your spouse still has contact with his/her child, but the child is now over 18. If this is the case, you will normally be required to meet the housing and financial support requirements. Please remember to include sufficient documentation that you do so. You should tick box C in Section 4.1, and your spouse should tick box C in Section 6.1.

If you and your spouse are unable to determine whether your situation has changed since your residence permit was granted, tick box D in Section 4.1, your spouse should tick box D in section 6.1.

The housing and financial support requirement

Housing

In order to qualify for a residence permit, you and your spouse must have accommodation of adequate size at your disposal.

If you and your spouse live at the same address as when you were granted your current residence permit, you do not need to submit further documentation.

Proof of accommodation of adequate size includes:

- a copy of your lease, if you live in rented housing or
- a copy of your deed or final sale agreement, if you own your own residence

Financial support

If you have been granted residence on the condition that your spouse can support you financially, you must provide proof that your spouse can still do so. Acceptable documentation includes: TAKS account statements showing your spouse's salary, a copy of your spouse's pay statements, copy of employer's salary records from the past 12 months.

By signing Section 5 below, you (the applicant) declare that you still qualify for a residence permit.

By signing Section 7 below, your spouse declares that you still qualify for a residence permit.

Enquiry

As part of your application to extend your Faroese residence permit, the Danish Immigration Service may enquire with the Faroese Immigration Office about your housing situation and whether your spouse is still able to support you financially, as well as whether there are other reasons for not extending your residence permit,
